

CHAMPIONS!

Home Team Wins Deciding Game of Basket Ball

FASTEST GAME OF SEASON

Score Close Throughout Game; Tie Several Times—Extra Time Needed.

At 8:30 Wednesday evening, Referee Hale called the game that was to decide the championship of Bedford County. The two teams contending for the title were Defiance and Bedford. These two teams, undisputed leaders, were a tie in games and met to fight for supremacy. Both towns had been considerably worked up and excited over the matter and an exceptionally large crowd gathered to see the game, the rosters from Defiance coming in a special train.

From the time the whistle that put the ball in motion blew, until it sounded at the end of the game, the Armory was the scene of the fastest and closest game of basket ball ever played in the county.

The first twenty-minute half ended 9 to 5, Bedford leading; but in the first few minutes of the second half the score was run up to 12-12, and in the next five it was even up to 16-16; one team now having the advantage, now the other, then tying again at 19-19; then 21-21, and at the end of the second half the score stood 22-22. The two captains then agreed to play an extra five minutes to decide the game. Those last five minutes were full of very fast playing in which the home team managed to make the goal that won the game, decided the championship and made the final score 24-22. The summary:

Defiance	Positions	Bedford
Ashcom	Forward	Richards
Burns	Forward	Plank
Collins	Center	Sheafnocker
Doner	Guard	Hershberger
Lynch	Guard	Smith
Field goals	Burns, 2; Collins, 1	Collins, 1
Doner 3; Lynch, 2; Richards, 4
Plank 3; Sheafnocker, 1. Fouls—
Ashcom, 6; Richards, 8. Total: Bedford, 24; Defiance, 22.

The Bedford basket ball team played its first game on February 15, and between that time and the present date they played 11 games, winning seven of them. This is a record to be proud of, considering the fact that they have only been playing about a month and a half.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Representative Matt Introduces Three Bills.

On March 5 Hon. John T. Matt introduced a bill in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg making it unlawful to sell at retail, cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette tobacco without a license issued by the County Treasurer, which license is to cost dealers in cities of the first class, $100; of the second class, $75, of the third class, $50, in boroughs, $20; in townships of the first class, $15, and in townships of the second class, $10. It forbids wholesale firms from selling to other than licensed retailers and fixes the penalty for violations of the act on the part of either wholesaler or retailer at not more than $500 for each offense.

On March 15, he introduced a bill carrying with it an appropriation of $1,000 for the erection of a monument to "mark the spot where the company of scouts under Captain Philips of Cololiel Piper's regiment were murdered by the Indians during the Revolutionary War on Sunday, July 16, 1780, near Saxton." It provides for the appointment of a commission of five citizens of Bedford County who shall have charge of the selection and erection of the monument, who shall serve without compensation. No money is to be available until a site free of cost shall have been provided.

On the same day he presented a bill concerning county lines which provides that the locating and marking of the same shall be done by three surveyors, two of whom shall be appointed by the courts of the counties concerned, which two shall appoint the third. The present law provides for five surveyors, two appointed by the courts, two by the boards of County Commissioners, and the fifth by the four already provided.

Mrs. Harrison Hartley

Mrs. Harrison Hartley, who was operated upon for appendicitis last Sunday afternoon at her home on East Pitt Street by Dr. Nelson of Roaring Spring, died last evening about 6:40 o'clock.

William J. McGregor

William Jones McGregor died at his home, one-half mile north of Pleasantville, of tuberculosis, on Wednesday, March 15, aged 51 years, four months and 13 days. He was born November 2, 1859, and was a son of Elijah and Mary (Ling) McGregor. He was married to Agnes Harbaugh 29 years ago and to this union were born nine children: Harry of Pleasantville, Bruce who died about three years ago; Nellie, wife of Clarence Claycomb, of Windber; George, Sewell, Lloyd, Charles and Emily, at home. He is also survived by one brother and two sisters: Alexander and Mrs. Joseph Kniseley, of Pleasantville, and Emily, wife of Harry Kegg, of North Dakota.

The deceased was born and reared on a farm in West St. Clair Township, was a farmer by occupation and owned the farm one-half mile north of Pleasantville, formerly owned by Benjamin H. Walker, a noted stationer of the underground railway during the days of slavery. The deceased was a good citizen, highly esteemed in the community in which he lived, a kind neighbor and friend and devoted to his family. He had been ill for several years, but continued to oversee his farm until a few weeks before his death.

The family extend their thanks to their friends and neighbors who so cheerfully rendered aid and sympathy during the last illness and death of the husband and father.

The funeral services were held at the home on Friday, conducted by Rev. L. B. Rittenhouse. The interment was made in Pleasantville Cemetery.

The remains were taken to her late home at Six Mile Run Monday afternoon, and the funeral services were conducted on Wednesday by Rev. F. W. McGuire. Interment in DuVal Cemetery.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KID-NEYS FREE

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 321 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has a great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

OATS SEEDINGNecessity for Thorough Preparation of the Soil.

The oats crop in Bedford County is not at all a certain thing. If we get a good rain just before heading time we usually get a fair crop of oats; if it heads in dry weather the crop is short. This crop can be made much more certain by a change in cultural methods.

Preparing the Oat Ground: Oats ground should always be harrowed the day of plowing; otherwise the losses of soil water from sun and wind are serious. Very few farmers are doing this; and it is absolutely necessary if we are to make sure of a good crop of oats.

All grain does better where the ground is thoroughly pulverized and then rolled or dragged; making a solid bed. But the harrow should follow the roller at once. As soon as the ground is rolled the loss of soil water begins again. If we can store up, by repeated harrowings, enough moisture in the soil for the needs of the plant at heading time, the oats crop is a pretty sure thing. Without this water in the soil the heads are stunted, as the plant can take food only when it is dissolved in water.

A very simple experiment to show the enormous loss of water where the ground is left unharrowed is suggested, viz: Take two common tumblers. Scratch the ground in the part of the rolled field with a rake; wait for a few hours until the scratched surface shows dry. Then put one tumbler upside down over this raked place and one close to it on unrolled ground. Let them stand in the sunlight for a half hour, and notice the quantity of water in each glass. That in the glass where you have scratched the ground will be very little compared with the other. The quantity of water represents very nearly the comparative evaporation on rolled ground, harrowed and unharrowed, in a single half hour.

Where plowed ground is left unharrowed the rough clods present very much more surface for evaporation than where it has been leveled with a harrow. And these clods are packed solid, just like rolled ground. Harrowing on the other hand, covers the surface with loose earth, thereby largely stopping evaporation.

There is no use in depending on a chance rain when we can make this crop reasonably certain every year by better farming.

Oats ground should be harrowed after each rain before seeding, to break the crust and save water. If rain comes and a crust forms after seeding, break it with the smoothing harrow to make sure of a full stand.

Of course the seed should be run through a fanning mill to get rid of light grains. Light grains make light crops. This re-cleaning is not always done, however, though it is valuable work. Very truly yours,

A. B. Ross, Special Agent.

R. M. Trout

Russell M. Trout whose death took place in Glenwood, Ia., March 13, 1911, was born March 26, 1835, near Altoona, and was thus nearly 76 years of age at the time of his death. He was married December 24, 1856, at Bedford to Sarah J. Silver, and to them six children were born, one of whom died in childhood.

The family came to Omaha in 1869, and in 1889 removed to Glenwood, which has since been their home.

Mr. Trout was a man kindly in disposition, a good husband and father, and honest in his dealings with others. He was a member of the Glenwood Congregational Church and a life member of St. John's Masonic Lodge in Omaha.

The funeral was held from the home Wednesday afternoon, the services being in charge of the Glenwood Masonic lodge.

He is survived by a wife and five children, also a sister, Miss Anna Trout of Denver, and a brother, Alem Trout of Martinsburg, formerly of Spring Meadow, Pa.—Mills County (Ia.) Tribune.

A Surprise Party

[Held over from last week.]
A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hengst at King, Saturday afternoon, March 11, in honor of their daughter Ada, it being her twelfth birthday. A number of her schoolmates presented her with many valuable and useful presents.

Those present were as follows: Misses Virgie Moorehead, Edith Bush, Marie, Violet, Florence and Annie Shoemaker, Florence, Clara, Ada and May Hengst, Carrie, Ada, Stella, Rosie and Annie Claycomb, Carrie, Edna, Dessie, Edith and Irene Fickes, Rilla Dively, Mary Gohnour, Ruth Colebaugh, Elsie Hengst, Mrs. Anna Hanes and daughter Thelma, of East Freedom; Messrs. William Brumbaugh, William and Frank Bush, Bruce Gohnour, Roy Fickes, Harry Crist and William and Charles Hengst.

A sumptuous dinner was served, which was made up of all the delicacies of the season. At an early hour the young people departed for their homes wishing Ada many more happy birthdays.

THEY ALL TURNED OUT

Whole Township Under Barney's Roof—All Report a Good Time.

[Held over from last week.]
Of all the surprises that we have had in our home since we were married, the greatest took place Saturday, March 11, when the good, kind neighbors began coming from the east, west, north and south, laden with baskets, buckets, boxes and sacks filled to overflowing. In wonder and astonishment we gazed upon the scene as they took possession of our home and began operating upon two fine baps and one quilt, while some took possession of the culinary department with such skill as showed that they are worthy of the vocation to which they have been called, while wife and I slipped around the corner and renewed our covenant relationship with each other, and sealed the covenant with a kiss of thanks and gratitude. As the old clock on the shelf tolled the hour noon the following surrounded the table filled with things calculated for the strengthening of soul and body.

Mrs. A. H. Egolf, Mrs. Rebecca Hanman, Mrs. B. O. Miller, Mrs. John Egolf, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Shaffer, Mrs. John Emerick, Mrs. John Crissman and daughters, Lizzie and Margaret; Mrs. Edie Hoover, Mrs. Peter Hilligass, Mrs. D. B. Clark, Mrs. Noah Thomas and daughter Mary; Mrs. Frank Egolf, Mrs. Levi Smith, Mrs. Daniel Miller and daughters, Elsie and Lucy; Mrs. Edward Hinson, Mrs. W. M. Moore and son Walter; Mrs. L. W. Egolf and daughter Stella; Mrs. Jonathan Miller and daughter Rebecca; Mrs. Solomon Miller and daughters, Eva and Hilda; Mrs. D. S. Findley and daughters, Ernie and Verda; Mrs. J. B. Findley, Miss Laura Smith, Miss Elsie Kinsey, Miss Edna Kinsey, Miss Carrie Cable; Edward Crissman, George Logue, Berg Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ellenberger and sons and daughters, Robert, Elmer, Edward, Daisy and Laura, and Grandmother Velsel.

After the repast, quilting and knotting was resumed and as the shades of night began to prevail the work was completed. Such gatherings and sweet associations are inexpressible, and now let the howling blasts of winter blow free and I can sleep as snug as two bugs in a rug. Wishing all a blessed future.

TRAINING SEALS.

These Dexterous Animals Easily Taught to Perform Tricks.

"The cardinal principle in training animals," says an animal trainer, "is not to attempt to make an animal do anything contrary to the nature of its particular species. To be successful a trainer must know enough about the habits of the animals he has under training to fit the tricks he would teach them to their natural bent."

"The seal is very easily taught. You begin with one seal, some small pieces of fish and a string. You let the seal sit on his pedestal, something he likes to do by nature; then you throw him one of the pieces of fish, and he, naturally and easily catches it. Next you tie a piece of fish on the end of your string and swing it toward the seal. He catches this, too, and you keep moving away from him and swinging the fish to him from an increasing distance. Now you are ready to begin with the hat or cornucopia. You put a piece of fish in the bottom of it and toss it to the seal. The seal is dexterous by nature, and his nose, quickly detecting the fish in the tip of the cone, seeks it out. The cone catches on his snout, and he bites out the fish and tosses the cone aside. Before long he comes to associate the cone with fish, and he will catch any number of similar ones and toss them aside when he fails to find what he wants."

"Balancing the big rubber ball is based on the same principle. The ball is soaked in fishy brine and thrown to the seal. He gets the odor and tries his best to get into the ball and find what he is after. This results in his balancing the ball on his nose, a feat to which his supple neck and his natural feeding habits are all adapted, and then he gets his piece of fish as a prize."—New York World.

BIBLES IN THE WORLD.

The Scandinavian Eddas the Most Recent of the Seven.

The world has seven Bibles. They are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Tripitaka of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta and the Scriptures of the Christians.

The Koran is not older than the seventh century of our era. It is a compound of quotations from the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the gospel of St. Barnabas. The Eddas of the Scandinavians were published in the eleventh century and are the most recent of these seven Bibles. The Buddhists' Tripitaka contain sublime morals and pure inspirations. Their author lived and died in the seventh century before Christ.

The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, "king" meaning web of cloth or the warp that keeps the threads in their places. They contain the choicest sayings of the best ages on the ethical-political duties of life. These sayings cannot be traced to a period higher than the eleventh century B. C. The Three Vedas are the most ancient books of the Hindus, and it is the opinion of great scholars that they are older than the eleventh century B. C.

The Zendavesta of the Persians is the grandest of all the sacred books next to the Bible. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, was born in the twelfth century B. C.—New York Herald.

BURNING OF WIDOWS.

The Horrible Rite India Maintained For Over Twenty Centuries.

The abolition of the horrid rite of widow burning in India was decreed by the British authorities in 1829.

The dreadful practice was found there by the Macedonians under Alexander the Great 300 years before Christ, and for more than twenty-one long, weary centuries did it repeat its almost inconceivable torture and agony upon the women of India. The sacrifice, while not actually forced on the wife, was so strongly insisted on by public opinion that it amounted to a law, and its victims were legion. Scores of widows were often burned upon the funeral pile of a single rajah. In Bengal, the head center of the monstrosity, thousands were sacrificed annually, and the figure for all India was appalling.

The millions of widowed women were completely at the mercy of the remorseless superstition of the times. The ministers of Brahmanism told the widow that her sacrifice was necessary as a means of her own happiness and that of her husband in the future state, and oftener than otherwise she consented to be burned along with the dead body of her husband. Unless she did this she was covered with the maledictions and curses of the people, was virtually outlawed and unceremoniously cast outside the pale of human sympathy and consideration and had to spend the rest of her days in degradation and wretchedness. It was death on the funeral pile of her husband or a living death of contumely and shame, of loneliness and misery.

The women of India can never discharge their debt of gratitude to England for the abolition of the suttee.—New York American.

ON THE TRAIL.

But He Didn't Know the Kind of Game He Was Tracking.

In the old days a man known as Judge Douglass lived in Helena, Mont. The judge had met with an accident in his youth and had lost both of his legs above the knees. He never would get artificial legs, but had some big leather pads made to fit on the ends of the stumps and walked on them.

Locomotion was slow for the judge, but he managed to cover a good deal of ground and was very fond of walking out on the edge of the town, where he could take his exercise without being the subject of remark from strangers in the city.

One day an Englishman came to Helena to hunt. He had some letters and put up at the Helena club. He stayed around for several days. Finally, after a light fall of snow, he decided to go out into the mountains and get a sheep or a deer or something.

He left early in the morning. When it came night he had not returned. His hosts around the club waited until 8 o'clock and then decided to go out and look him up, thinking he might have been lost in one of the gulches or canyons in the hills.

They formed a rescue party and went out to the edge of the town. There they met the Englishman, who was wildly excited.

"Did you get anything?" they asked him.

"No," he replied, "not yet, but I've been tracking an elephant for the last three hours."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Juries in the Old Days.

In olden times when a jury in England remained impervious to the judge's gentle mode of persuasion fine and imprisonment were resorted to. The jury that acquitted Sir Nicholas Throckmorton was condemned to eight months' imprisonment in addition to the payment of a large sum of money. In the reign of Queen Elizabeth a jury, having reduced a prisoner's alleged crime of murder to that of manslaughter, was at once sent to prison and bound over in a large sum to be of good behavior. Penalties were likewise inflicted upon the innocent wife and children of the offending jurymen.

A Moving Sermon.

"I once had a parishioner who was a miser," said an English clergyman. "For this man's benefit I preached one Sunday a strong sermon on the necessity of charity, of philanthropy—a sermon on the duty and the joy of giving. The miser, at whom I gazed often, seemed impressed."

"Next day I met him on the street."

"Well, John," I said, "what do you think of yesterday's sermon?"

"It moved me deeply, sir," he answered. "It brought home to me so strongly the necessity of giving alms that honestly, sir, I've a great mind to turn beggar."

A Boomerang.

"What's the matter with your head?" asked the first bunko man.

"A farmer I met today just banged me there with his carpetbag," replied the other.

"It must have been a pretty hard carpetbag."

"Yes; it had a gold brick in it that I sold him yesterday."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Old, Old Story.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Dad Dined in Three States in One Day Recently.

[Held over from last week.]

Athens, Tenn., March 13, 1911. This is my first trip to this ancient town of about 3,000 souls. The Magill Hotel is the only one I saw or had anything to do with. A lady seemed to be the boss. She was pleasant and attentive to her guests, seeing that each one was properly served at the table. For a town of its size the hotel is a dandy, as clean as a new pin and the table spread with faultless linen. The food was in abundance in variety and well cooked.

Mr. G. F. Lockmiller is the high muck a muck as to business, and I don't know when I met such a pleasant gentleman. Why he does by far the largest business in town. The Southern Railroad and the Louisville and Nashville each come here. The L. & N. have just built a new depot which is certainly an honor to the place. They are beautifying the section of country which they inhabit, in various ways; they are changing the course of a stream in order to help the looks of things. Here again the court house, the temple of justice, as it is called by the defeated one in the suit, is built in the center of the square. The county is McMinin and they raise lots of wheat. One notices the elegant farms as he passes along at seventeen miles per hour, and that is the rate of speed that the L. & N. makes between Athens and Englewood. Oh! yes they charge four cents per mile also for hauling you out there, where we connect with the main line running from Knoxville to Atlanta. The many large farms and wheat fields looked beautiful in a glorious spring time sunrise.

One day last week I had breakfast in Tennessee, dinner in Georgia and supper in North Carolina, and I had business in each of the states that day. I am now northward bound, but I can't get north for probably a month yet and to do so even in that time I must keep perfectly well and average three towns a day.

Since writing the foregoing I have visited the Cherokee reservation, some five miles from Ula, N. C.; this reached by the Appalachian Railroad. At this settlement are two thousand Cherokee Indians, hence the name Cherokee reservation; I think Uncle Sam installed it. These Indians are, as a class, lazy. Some few farm but raise very little, because they do not care for the growing crop. Many spend their time in fishing and hunting. Some have stores of small wares, these are very crude. Last year the Government paid each one of these Indians a hundred dollars, that meant all, both great and small, old and young and this year each one is to get thirty-three dollars from the same source. They spend the money recklessly and in a short time it is all and then the devil is to play for there is no more money to send to Louisville, Ky., or Chattanooga, Tenn., for corn juice. I know nothing about the religious views of these Cherokees, but I don't think some of them have much. Some get married by a minister or squire, but most of them solemnly declare their intentions before witnesses and then go to living as man and wife. Some of them have land of their own. I met there Edward Wolf, a very pleasant young man who put in five years at Carlisle, graduating there two years ago, after which he went to work for the Hershey Chocolate Company. He was down here settling some matters about his mother's estate; he starts back today, says he can't stand it down here any more. To hear him speak words of praise about his boss at Hershey's, Mr. Murry, a Bedford Countian, would do you good. He is also loud in his praise of the Carlisle Indian School. I spent two hours at Bryson City, N. C., where Slayden and Fakes, the very large wholesale grocers of Asheville, N. C., have a branch house, which is managed by Mr. Gigson, one of the whitest of white men, and he is assisted by Meade Wilson, both are splendid gentlemen and watch over and work as hard as anyone could for their employers. Under their guidance they sold most half a million last year and Brother Gibson tells me that Fort Bedford's were quite a factor in the grand total.

I forgot to tell you that the Government furnishes all but the scholars for a school up at the Cherokee reservation. This school has over four hundred scholars. I wonder how much Bedford County contributes toward this, eh?

Yours truly,

M. P. Heckerman.

A Special Medicine for Kidney Ailments

Many elderly people have found in Foley's Kidney Remedy a quick relief and permanent benefit from kidney and bladder ailments and from annoying urinary irregularities due to advancing years. Isaac N. Regan, Farmer, Mo., says: "Foley's Kidney Remedy effected a complete cure in my case and I want others to know of it." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Beware of Tree Agents

In the remarkable enthusiasm for orchard planting, which has overtaken the citizens of Pennsylvania, the nurserymen and tree agents have reaped a harvest, much of which is, indeed, legitimate. But a few reports of strong and extravagant claims, made by such agents, have reached the office of State Zoologist, H. A. Surface. Among these was one to the effect that a tree agent, with headquarters near the central part of the state, was taking orders for peach trees, represented as borer-proof, because budded on a special hardy southern cherry or plum. The statement was further made that only four varieties of peach could be thus budded. Professor Surface submitted this communication to Prof. R. L. Watts, the Horticulturist at State College, and both agreed that it was a plain case of fraud. It is not the first time that this same tree agent has been reported for soliciting orders for supposedly borer-proof or "ironclad" trees. A few years ago Tioga County farmers had an experience with him, selling trees "borer-proof, made so by grafting on oak roots." There is, unfortunately, no special law against this particular form of swindle, but every prospective buyer should inform himself before placing orders. It is best to buy directly from a reliable nursery, or only of known and responsible agents, rather than from travelers whom the buyer does not know and may never see again.

A GREAT PHYSICIAN

What He Said of Germs That Cause Disease.

M. Pasteur, sometimes called the Greatest Physician, often said "I believe that we shall one day rid the world of all diseases that are caused by germs."

Of all the diseases caused by germs, catarrh is one of the most persistent and loathsome. Catarrh can be cured, but only by destroying the germs.

Breathe HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) and cure catarrh by killing the germs. The HYOMEI method is the only sensible method, because you breathe the highly antiseptic and germ killing air directly over the entire membrane infested with catarrh germs.

HYOMEI will cure catarrh. There may be some complicated cases where it will fail, but the chances are ten to one in its favor, and the sufferer from catarrh takes no risk, because HYOMEI is a guaranteed remedy, and if it doesn't cure, F. W. Jordan will refund the purchase price.

HYOMEI will also give instant relief and cure bronchitis, coughs, colds and croup. A complete outfit, including hard rubber pocket inhaler, costs only $1.00. If you now own a Hyomei inhaler you can get a bottle of HYOMEI for 50 cents.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAR. 24, 1911.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY

It is the twenty-fourth of March, nineteen hundred eleven, just two years since Hon. Edwin S. Stuart, then Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, affixed his name to Senate bill No. 77, presented two months before less one day, by Hon. William C. Miller of this, the thirty-sixth Senatorial district, thus making it legal in this county to publish legal notices in "and two papers," where two are required.

We shall not celebrate this, the second anniversary of the signing of the bill that was designed to put the Bedford Gazette "out of business," other than to recall the history of the occurrence.

Within the memory of those who read this, was fought a battle for Congressional honors in which the Gazette opposed John M. Reynolds. During that campaign, which resulted in his losing "his home ward, his home town and his home county," all of which were Republican, we were threatened with the loss of legal printing if we did not let up. At another time we were told that the election of any part of a fusion ticket in the field would mean the loss of legal printing to The Gazette. What we replied would not look good in print, but surely no sane man will accuse us of having swerved from the course outlined. Some of the fusion ticket were ejected; so was Reynolds, but but not by his home county. It remained but for the threat to be carried out. The law on the statutes of the state required that legal printing in this county be placed (when two papers were required) in the two papers having the largest circulation. During the fall of 1908 notice was given by publication that a bill would be presented to the Legislature to repeal the Act of 1866, which advertising violated the very law it sought to repeal because it was not placed in the two papers having the largest circulation in the county.

On a bleak day in January there was silence in the gilded "temple of graft" when Senator William C. Miller rose in his place and read in measured tones the bill, his voice resounding through the corridors and penetrating to the dark places, the while satisfaction swelled in the breasts of the Senators who thought they heard the ringing of the death knell of the Bedford Gazette, which had then existed for more than an hundred years without change of name or political faith.

The bill was referred to the Judiciary General (what a misnomer!) Committee. It went later to the House where, as in the Senate, it was passed, Mr. Oster, who was not allowed to tell why he voted as he did on the Fair Local Option bill, supporting it.

It reached the Governor. He was advised of its not having been legally advertised, of the fact that his predecessor in office had vetoed the same measure a couple years before because he thought that "advertising in papers having the largest circulation best serves the purpose," and was presented a request from 19 out of a possible 26 of the active attorneys at the Bedford Bar, but one of those asked refusing to sign and one still "considering the matter," but all without avail. The Chief Executive affixed his name, thus lending a hand to the sinister work of crushing all opposition to the State Machine.

The deed was done. Then was made the statement that two years would finish the Bedford Gazette.

Now for the process of extermination.

Just to show that the State Machine was with the "local annex" the proposed amendments to the constitution were published in two Republican papers, in consideration of which, perhaps, they both advocated the passage of that notorious "seventh" which provided for the appointment of election officers (by whom?). These The Gazette printed at its own expense.

Shortly after the signing of the bill Mr. Treasurer Bolger took out of the hands of the Commissioners the publishing of his route collecting taxes. This the Commissioners would not stand and authorized the publication of the route in The Gazette, that Democratic taxpayers, too, might know when he would be around.

Recorder James and Prothonotary Guyer, too, have tried to keep their notices from the gaze of Democrats, but the Gazette has been awake and has printed their notices without compensation. When officials take the oath of office are they servants of the people or of a party?

In justice to Sheriff Dodson and his Deputy, Grant Dodson, we may remark that they have placed their advertising as they pleased. It means something, of course, to be opposed by a "machine" and an "annex" that can use the legislative machinery of the state to carry out its nefarious projects, but The Gazette still lives and is hale and active, and barring injunctions, it will continue to be issued Friday mornings from the old stand, remaining as it has been, the leading paper of the county, both in circulation and as an advertising medium. We do not regret having defied threateners and spurned propositions and are thankful to our patrons; we are glad to subsist upon our own earnings from merit and would feel ashamed to live on "bonuses."

ORGANIZE CIVIC SOCIETY

Elsewhere in this issue appears a call, signed by a number of citizens, for a meeting at the Court House Tuesday evening, March 28, for the purpose of organizing a Civic Society. This is a matter that merits the support of our citizens. If an organization is effected and it receives the proper encouragement and support, it will result in good to the town.

It is with regret that we admit it, but "truth is truth," that Bedford is by no means up-to-date along many lines that would be dealt with by such an organization.

Few are the towns the size of Bedford that offer no means of youthful expenditure of surplus energy at healthy and healthful exercise on athletic ground or in gymnasium—places of amusement that are essential. No public library offers an opportunity for mental improvement to boys and girls, young men and young women—in short, all that are disposed to read.

The general appearance of the town can be materially improved, though considerable has already been done along this line, in the beautifying of yards and lawns and the removing of fences.

That the condition of the town can be improved there is no question and the work of such a society will be appreciated. Turn out and help it along.

CLEAN UP

Walk out your front door and look at your lawn. Has anything accumulated upon it during the winter months? Are there bare spots that need seeding or sodding? If so, the time of year is here to look after it.

Having satisfied yourself that you have done your share toward making a "Bedford Beautiful and Healthful" so far as your lawn and flower beds are concerned, glance at the front fence. Does it need paint? Don't paint it but tamp the post holes full of earth and sod them over.

As you come out of the cellar after having directed that some sprouting potatoes be cared for and some rotten turnips removed and the place whitewashed and generally renovated, look down along the garden fence. Those old corn stalks and those cabbage roots have served their purpose. You know the rest.

YESTERDAY AND TODAY

Had he lived, Grover Cleveland would have been 74 years of age on Saturday. Recalling on this anniversary the various acts of his Presidential administration that were construed as hostile to England, the speech of Sir Edward Grey last week in the British Parliament commending to the favorable consideration of his countrymen an alliance with the United States for the preservation of universal peace, is significant of the marked change in feeling toward each other now entertained by the two nations.

To no one more than the dead President would the growing improvement in our relations with the mother country as indicated by recent occurrences give greater satisfaction were he alive today. It will be 23 years next August since he sent to Congress a message affirming a policy of retaliation against Canada in connection with the acrimonious Newfoundland fisheries question, amicably adjusted recently through a court of arbitration. The following October he dismissed Lord Sackville-West, the Minister of England to Washington, for venturing to advise a fellow countryman, who had become an American citizen, how to vote and in 1895 during his second administration he gave the tail of the British lion its severest wrench by suggesting the appointment of a commission to determine the disputed boundary line between British Guiana and Venezuela, then assuming an acute stage.

Under the sobering influence of time the rancor and bitterness which formerly needed little to inflame the smoldering embers of national prejudice have given way to a spirit of mutual toleration, forbearance and appreciation. Twenty years ago, a reciprocity agreement with Canada such as has been sponsored by President Taft would have been condemned as evidence of National weakness and commanded scarcely a single vote in Congress. Now we welcome it as a good thing and acclaim it a necessary feature in the commercial evolution of both countries. Twenty years ago, a suggestion for any sort of alliance with England, offensive or defensive, would have aroused the usefulness of the statesman who recommended it. Now not a leaf's astir or a bird's flutter in the whole land.

England sends her surplus millions to the United States to finance some of our foremost industries in the East and help James J. Hill and other railroad builders develop the trackless wastes of the west. American money, with the encouragement and co-operation of the English Colonial government, finds profitable investment in rubber cultivation in British Guiana, fruit in its West Indian possessions and tin in India. Our children inter-marry with more frequency, our navies vie with one another in hospitality, our scientific and research bureaus work in unison for the common good and there is less suspicion, less jealousy, less disposition apparent to impute each other questionable motives and sinister ambitions in our diplomatic and commercial relations than there used to be.

In a closer business union, we have buried, let us hope forever, old animosities and come to a better understanding, which the years will strengthen and fortify as they glide by. Militant American, as he was, sensitive of the honor of his country abroad and its integrity at home, this notable achievement of peace, the cherished dream of every President from Washington to Taft, had been spared to see it bear fruit, would have been hailed by Cleveland as marking the advent of the most propitious epoch in our whole 135 years' history as an independent nation.

A good business man said last week that he never quite squared himself with Duty and Privilege until he bought an endowment policy of life insurance—then his conscience was clear on that score.

My brother, have you financial assurance for the years when you cannot work? Now is the time to start such protection—the cost is greater as you grow older.

Let me make it easy for you to get the Investment and Protection afforded by the great Provident Life and Trust Co., Philadelphia.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Canton, N. C., March 21.
This town is on the branch of the Southern Railroad that runs between Murphy, N. C., and Asheville. This branch of the Southern is one hundred and twenty-four miles long and is built through and over the mountains of North Carolina about which I have several times written you. It passes the great Talcum Mountain where they mine and take out large quantities of the rock which is ground up and which many of your lady readers use to beautify their faces with. I have some of the original rock which I shall bring home and leave at Ed Heckerman's store where your readers may see it.

The town or city from which I am writing this letter five years ago had sixty inhabitants, a small country store and a cobbler's shop; today it has six thousand inhabitants with a large wholesale grocery and many other fine stores and handsome homes. Their water plant, electric light plant and street department is superintended by a Bedford County man, one who claims Everett as his home. Guess who it is. He is a nephew of Jacob Chamberlain. Give it up, eh? Well it is A. W. Fisher. Mr. Fisher is a machinist and came here four years ago to install machinery in the immense pulp and acid works here. Whilst at work he was hurt and gave up that position to accept his present one.

At this paper and acid plant they use 425 cords of wood a day; 150 cords of this is chestnut wood, the balance is hemlock, poplar, etc. They pay for the chestnut $4.50 per cord, and $5 for the hemlock. F. O. B. at shipping point. They first extract the tannic acid from this wood, making each day three eight thousand gallon tank cars from the chestnut wood. After extracting the tannic acid from the wood they use the wood further and make a white pulp or cardboard that they put in rolls and send to Hamilton, O., where these are done over and made into high class paper which is sold mostly to the magazine people and for making love-letter paper. This firm employs nine hundred men and boys in the factory. They work night and day, and of course is the soul of the town; they also employ as many as a thousand out in the woods. Mr. Fisher says his health is good here. He asked about lots of men who live in the Providence Townships, especially about J. Q. Nycum.

Next I strike Waynesville, N. C., which is located in one of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of western North Carolina; 2,800 feet above sea level is the town whilst several of the peaks in the neighborhood reach the dizzy heights of five thousand, and it is said that the eagle's nest is sixty-five hundred feet above tide. With water as pure as Bedford's and air that a man can breathe and feel oh! so good! 'tis no wonder that the hotels are always crowded with guests seeking there God's blessings to those who live hereabouts. The soil is rich and is well adapted to the growth of all kinds of fruit, berries and vegetables, thus affording many advantages to the home seeker.

We will pass the beautiful Asheville now and say a word about its rival, Hendersonville, which is only twenty-two hundred feet above sea level, being surrounded by mountains of unsurpassed scenic grandeur, in the midst of the "Land of the Sky" which I cannot find words to describe; 'tis said to be free from fog, malaria and mosquitoes. The days are pleasant and the nights so cool that sleep refreshes one mightily. In and near Hendersonville are many points of interest; the famous views from the mountain peaks, three fine lakes (no fishing). At all seasons the town has five thousand and at certain other seasons it has more than double that number. Only a very few hotels are open all the year. I stop at the Kentucky Home; it is clean and well kept, has all modern conveniences, with a dining room which seats one hundred and fifty very comfortably, rates $2 per day.

I shall pass by Spartanburg, S. C., as I shall some day have a big letter to write on it alone. Felder and Brown of the city will give your readers any information they may desire about the city or country if they write them and say Dad said so.

Gaston County, North Carolina, county seat of which is Gastonia, has fifty-three cotton mills, fifty of these are now in full operation. Quite an increase in the number since I was there last; then twenty-eight was the number. There are fifteen of the fifty in and close to Gastonia, which by the way, needs a good hotel badly. The brick one there now is a disgrace to the beautiful town with paved streets and granolithic sidewalks. There are two wholesale grocers in the town, each doing a nice and lucrative business.

Hickory comes next and this town, about which I have written you before, has within a short time put in a complete sewerage system and a hundred thousand dollar water plant, also erected a most beautiful Reformed Church of which the Rev. Murphy is pastor. The members of the Reformed Church are very numerous hereabouts and a great compliment was paid them not long since by Mr. I. L. Riddle, Treasurer and Manager of the Hickory Grocer Co., which did a business in 1910 of half a million and did not lose a single account. Who could do better? Mr. Riddle says most of their trade are German Reformed. This man Riddle is a tall gentleman with an iron gray mustache, he is the soul of honor and one of the brightest business men that I know of. The one who has worked the business of the Hickory Grocer Company from an infant, in a business way, to a strong muscular man.

The wheat looks well and the fruit promises to be abundant in all this country.
Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Suggests Reading Bible, Better Schools, More Convenient Homes and Care of Soil.

Religion

No home or farm can be permanently improved if religion is overlooked. In the rural districts of some portions of our county, I doubt if the family altar exists in more than one home today where at least five times as many heads of families asked the blessing at the table twenty years ago.

I admit that it is but natural for one to refer to the past for good people, and happy gatherings; but examine for yourself the present generation on the farm as to their knowledge of the Bible and compare the result with the frequent correct analysis from Genesis to Revelation you obtain from the old farmer.

Some one has claimed that the church of today is relieved of many of its former duties by reason of state laws, Y. M. C. A.'s, and kindred associations; but, if true, this does not apply with much force to country life. Not only the farmer's crop but his moral stamina as well, forms the true foundation upon which rests our republic's future.

When we examine the books or country library which our parents possessed, we can't help but think that, like Lincoln with his eight books, they "fletcherized" what few they had and therein lies the secret of their store of knowledge.

If indifference to the Bible among young farmers continues for a couple generations more, it will be easy to form a seed bed on which can be grown rank weeds of all isms. We have a blood red reminder in France's "Reign of Terror" when her people ignored God.

To obtain a true analysis of the Old and New Testaments, to my mind is difficult from reading the Bible itself; but this is made plain by first digesting the Story of the Bible—a book found in the home of many an aged farmer. Before leaving this feature of home and farm improvement, permit me to quote a thought from Frank Crane, which will stand reading twice:

"In school and church we teach everything except just those deepest problems of personal life where joy and sorrow center and where shipwreck from ignorance is most possible and terrible."

School

Despite the fact that America spends nearly two-thirds as much for education as the entire remainder of the world, the farm school facilities are wretched, considering how far-reaching the importance of education is, not only on this generation but those to follow. As farmers we are apt to ask ourselves why it is that a great state like this has allowed their other states to surpass her in extending aid to schools for agricultural purposes?

Nothing is so pleasing to the farmer and makes him feel like paying tax as to attend public meetings and hear speakers sent out by the state; to sit in a train and learn up-to-date methods of farming and road building; or, better yet, to climb into his neighbor's orchard and be instructed on how to care for an orchard.

However when we recall that there are 1,000 central schools in the country districts throughout the U. S., many collecting the school children in automobiles and hacks, delivering them daily at the central township school on the same plan that our milk and mail is delivered, we are forced to wonder why this improvement is away from home; why Ohio farmers for fifteen years past in many places have enjoyed this luxury; and why it is that a small state like New Jersey appropriates nearly as much for her schools as does an immense state like our own?

It is largely to the credit of the late Hon. W. C. Smith that our school appropriation was raised several years ago from three to seven millions. But later if farm work will permit, I shall have more to say as to appropriations in our state; and in the meantime, brother farmer, pin this in your hat: we farmers pay about eighty millions tax yearly while the corporations worth twice as much pay less than twenty millions in Pennsylvania.

I hold that the little country school house has seen its day. Instead of ten school houses in a township there should be one central school house to which all the pupils should be conveyed. This school would be a graded one like that at Bedford; a teacher having but one grade, which gives an opportunity to devote the whole attention to that particular grade.

A field of several acres could be used near the school to aid in teaching agriculture to the advanced pupils; the same field or portion of same could be used by the Grange as an experiment plot. The school should be headquarters for lectures and any public gathering of interest to the farmer. In the high school department could be expected farmers' sons posted on subjects from soil culture to horse shoeing; from fruit growing to grafting (trees); from stock feeding to growing legume crops.

Home

I venture this prediction: That for every dollar spent in the farm home to equip it in an up-to-date garb, two dollars can be realized for the one spent and that almost immediately at public sale thereafter. Instead of making such gains in the way of improvements too many farmers prefer money on 6% interest.

The telephone, rural free delivery, good roads, and the automobile are rapidly increasing the value of many a farm, whose owner is not progressive enough to add the slight finishing touch, such as acetylene, light which makes it possible upon driving home a dark night to pull an "ignition" chain and light up the entire house and barn; and water piped into the house with all the conveniences of a city home. How many farm homes in Bedford County have water piped therein? How many bath rooms and how many are lighted, other than with the oil lamp—so dangerous and requiring so much work? For the price of a good horse any of these conveniences can be had on almost any farm. The farmer will be thrice repaid by saving the women in their work.

Someone has said that there are more farmers' wives go insane than any other class of people; and if this be true one can account for part of it when we see the hills up which they must carry water unnecessarily and a score of other hard tasks, usually needless, if it were not for the farmers' neglect to improve and keep up with the times.

Of course lack of improvement is not limited to those who put money on interest; the reverse condition figures as a cause. It's to this fellow farmer I would say: "The true aim of life is not to be afraid." The sage has said "we can make this world a prison or a playground. The key is my Will."

Farm

What has already been said applies to the farm in general, but I would now direct your attention to the field. You will observe in passing through our country some big contrasts as to clean fence rows. Is there anything on the farm that makes a farmer feel that he can breathe free and easy as do clean fence rows? There are some farm sections in this state without a fence at all. It makes one almost dizzy to think of the hard work required of our ancestors to split and maul rails to build and keep up so many needless fences. To pull down and plow up these useless middle fence rows will not injure the appearance of any farm; and while you are at it, don't neglect to remove the worthless trees that often serve but two purposes—shade the crop and rob the soil.

Since we are out in the field we must refer to the most important subject on the farm—soil fertility. In many sections of our county lime was burned twenty years ago more than at present by a great deal; and if it were not for the dairy, more unfavorable results would be apparent. Space will not permit my dwelling on this subject as it deserves. However we shall make no mistake if we use more care in buying our phosphate raw and mixing it ourselves; then lie awake at nights planning how to grow more legume crops, especially alfalfa. Before we leave the field may I not ask, has not the Bedford County farmer been raising too much timothy?

A reputation for being severe with hired help costs the farmer as dearly as any other bad reputation.

As to improving buildings or erecting new ones, put lots of time on your plans before striking a lick. Go to those who are successful in this line and examine plans and arrangements. Hon. J. E. Thropp has a knack at improving farm buildings that is worth examining.

In conclusion notice the drainage from many of the barn yards throughout the county as you travel and then recall this: The most successful Pennsylvania farmer who as a farmer achieved such fame that people came from Europe to America purposely to see his farm, when asked what he attributed his success to said "two-thirds of my success is due to the way I conserved my fertilizer."

TAMING A SHREW

It Was Tried at Sea and Was Not Successful

By EVAN D. BALDWIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

How Jack Stoughton came to fall in love with Emily Gunter no one could ever find out. Jack was a fine, manly young sailor, and whenever he came home from a voyage all the girls made a dead set for him. Emily was the only girl in the village who paid no attention to him. Perhaps he was plucked on that account. Emily was fairly good looking, though she had a square jaw and the corners of her lips were drawn down, denoting a strong will.

On one of his homecomings Jack sidled up to Emily either from pique or curiosity or a little of both, and they were seen walking together on the beach or sitting on the dunes. Their friends observed that Emily usually had a scowl on her face and Jack seemed to be trying to get her into a good humor.

"What do you want with that girl, Jack?" one of his messmates who was ashore with him said to him one day. "She seems to be continually quarreling with you. You're the best natured man in our ship, so I know it's no fault of yours. If you marry her you'll get a wasp, take my word for that."

"I know you're right, Billy, but somehow there's a fascination in being treated as if she didn't care a rap for me and being hammered by her. The nearest I ever came before to an infatuation was by a little Mexican girl at Vera Cruz who tried to stab me. Singular, isn't it, how we men find a zest in that kind of women?"

"I can understand that so long as you're not married to one of 'em. But you just put your neck in a halter and give Emily Gunter the loose end and she'll make it hot for you all your married life."

"There was Petruchio, who tamed a shrew."

"Petruchio be hanged! All imaginary! No man ever tamed a shrew. You can tame that kind of man, but not that kind of woman."

But Jack Stoughton was too intent upon taming with gunpowder to heed his friend's advice. Shortly before they sailed he told Billy he had married Emily, that she seemed very amiable and that she was so averse to parting with him that she was bent on taking the voyage with him.

The Albatross, in which they were to go to Japan and return, was commanded by Captain Larkins. Billy Anderson was first mate, and Jack was second mate. Emily went to Captain Larkins and induced him to let her go on the voyage with them. He had never seen her before and thought a woman on board would have a refining influence on the crew. He had given his consent before Anderson told him what kind of woman Mrs. Stoughton was; but, having given it, he would not withdraw it.

The lady was very pleasant till the ship was well on her way—indeed, too far out to warrant a return—then she began to belabor her husband in no uncertain tones. What the trouble was no one knew, but Mrs. Stoughton's voice could be heard in her stateroom even in stormy weather above the whistling of the wind in the rigging.

It was not long before poor Jack was an object of pity on the part of the crew, and not a man but condemned his wife. The captain finally went to Mrs. Stoughton and besought her to let up on Jack, but got such a berating himself that he was glad to beat a retreat.

It is surprising that Captain Larkins who had some twenty men under him not one of whom dared to give him the least back talk, should have been driven from the after cabin and up on to the poop deck by a woman. The day this occurred and it had been discovered that Mrs. Stoughton was virtually in command of the ship each one of the crew went about his duties as if something momentous had happened. They had most of them been at sea for years, they had encountered hurricanes, some had lived for days on a raft without food or water, some had been cast upon desert lands, but none of them had ever passed through an experience like this. Their captain whom they respected and feared, had been downed. They were as much taken aback as if their rudder had been put out of commission.

The captain had become a different man. He walked the deck with a humped back. He gave his orders in a humble tone, as if he would be much obliged if the men should obey them and the men themselves did their duties languidly, as if some misfortune hung over the ship. Only one man, Jack Stoughton, seemed to have been improved by the incident. Before it occurred he had the demeanor of a whipped cur; now he went about as if he felt himself as good a man as any aboard.

The crew, sympathizing with their captain and one another in the presence of a strange misfortune, between watches consulted as to means of relief.

"What's the matter with ye, ye lubbers?" said Tom Billings, a married man. "There's 'sunders as lives their whole lives with squalls 'angin' over 'em all the time, and yet you duffers is knocked out by one 'ooman to a hull ship. Stoughton 'asn't got used to it yet, but he will. I got used to it long ago. My old 'ooman's a corker. When she's mad ye'd think the thunder was a-rollin'. When I see one o' them storms a-comin' I've larned to take in all sail, batten down the 'atches and let the storm blow itself out. Then there's a dead calm for a spell, and a fair breeze follows."

Billings, an experienced man, talked to those without any experience whatever. To be out on a trackless ocean dismayed was one thing—there was still discipline—but to be there with the captain and all hands subdued by one who had never studied navigation and couldn't make an observation was another. The first would be in the line of a sailor's life; the second there was no precedent for. Something must be done. One proposition after another was made, discussed and discarded. Finally Dick Smalls, one of the younger members of the crew, spoke up:

"It's plain that Mrs. Stoughton has miffed and took the ship. I don't see that there is anything for us to do but mutiny agin the new master and take the ship ourselves."

"That's all werry well, mates," put in Tom Billings, "perwidin' you can get rid o' the 'ooman. But after ye got the ship what ye goin' to do with her? Hain't she still in command? That's my experience."

This was a poser, especially as the crew, nearly all of whom were single men, had great respect for Tom Billings' opinion on anything concerning the opposite sex.

"It seems to me, mates," continued Billings, "that ye're up agin a want o' knowledge o' navigatin' the female craft. All ye got to do is to put 'em afore the wind and let 'em scud. Ye can't steer 'em, and if ye try ye'll sure come to grief. But I knows there hain't no use o' talkin' to you. You're bound to run this here business yer own way, so ye can count me out."

With that he went on deck.

The next day the mutiny plan was carried out. The men, except Stoughton, who was not consulted, marched aft in a body and demanded the person of the "ooman as has took this ship." The captain made a pretense of resistance, confining himself to words instead of acts, then told them that, being powerless in face of a united crew, they could do what they liked with the woman.

A round robin of four men was appointed to take Mrs. Stoughton down into the hold and turn her adrift, where she would have plenty of room to walk back and forth like a caged lioness. They put bedding down with her, and it was understood that her meals should be let down to her regularly.

"Did ye observe the look on her face, mates?" remarked Billings after the woman had been safely put away. "When they looks that way it means the weather glass is a-goin' down like lead."

Three days passed without any trouble so far as the prisoner was concerned. From the moment she was put below the accustomed cheerfulness came back to the crew, enhanced by contrast with their late condition. But on the fourth day when the captain was standing on the poop deck and a large sea rolled under the vessel he noticed that she didn't rise with her accustomed buoyancy. Billings was standing by at the time.

"What's the matter with her?" growled the captain to himself.

"It's my opinion, sir," said Billings, putting his knuckles to his cap, "that there's somepin in the cargo as don't belong there."

"What do you mean?" asked the captain anxiously.

"The 'ooman."

"Well?"

"When she was put in the hold I was wonderin' what she'd do, so I've kept my blinkers open. The ship's drawin' more water, sir, than she did three days ago."

"You mean?"

"She scuttled."

The captain made a dive for the companionway, calling on Billings to follow. Entering the hold, they found four feet of water. The point of leakage was covered so that they could not see it, but they found some of the carpenter's tools of which Mrs. Stoughton had possessed herself. All hands were called to man the pumps, and when the water had been removed a large auger hole was discovered a few feet above the keel.

The hole having been plugged, the captain ordered Mrs. Stoughton locked in her own cabin, then called the crew aft and asked for suggestions as to what to do with her. Every man jack of them looked at Billings, so the captain asked for his advice.

"There's just two ways o' managin' 'oomen, sir," said the old salt. "The first is to git away from 'em, the second to let 'em have their own way. I can only judge by my own experience. After I was married I observed that to keep the family peace I'd got to knuckle under. There's 'sunders as is 'cad o' the 'ouse, but this is where the 'ooman 'asn't the usual female grit. Them as lets their wives command the family ship gits on just as well as any of 'em. Some un's got to be boss, and if the 'ooman has the dominatin' faculty in her why not?"

The captain decided that Mrs. Stoughton should have the free run of the ship for that voyage, after which no woman was to be permitted aboard. So he issued orders to that effect, and Mrs. Stoughton was not again interfered with from that moment until the vessel reached port.

Strange to say, having conquered, the lady made herself quite agreeable, and when she left the ship half the crew felt a heartiness they had never felt before.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH YOU?

Think over your condition and see if you have any of the following symptoms: Is your tongue coated in the morning? Do you have a furred, rough taste in the mouth? When you stoop over and rise quickly do you feel a sudden pain in the back? Do you see spots before your eyes after quick rising? Do you have a hot, heavy feeling at the base of the brain? Are your feet and hands cold and clammy? These are all SURE symptoms that your kidneys are affected. If you have ANY ONE of the above described feelings, you are neglecting your general health if you do not pay particular attention to the warnings which "Mother Nature" has given you.

The great specialist, Dr. Daniel G. Carey, has stated, "Over Ninety per cent. of the cause of all chronic disease arises from a disordered condition of the Kidneys. Nature, in her wonderful work, has provided these important organs for a specific purpose—to filter and cast out all impurities from the blood. If the Kidneys do not perform their work, the blood becomes impure and impregnated with diseased matter which clogs up and overflows; this 'overflow' is absorbed into the Stomach, Bladder, Lungs and all of the vital organs, they become weakened in their action and result in a complication of diseases from which the patient is bound to suffer."

Dr. Carey's MARSH ROOT will rectify all of these troubles and will give you a new lease on life. MARSH ROOT is one of the prescriptions used by Dr. Carey in his private practice, for over twenty-five years. MARSH ROOT is a combination of ROOTS and HERBS compounded in a scientific manner, to produce a natural result by natural means. MARSH ROOT removes the EFFECT of disease by going direct to the CAUSE.

The following is a statement given to Dr. Carey in regard to the remarkable cure of A. B. ROYSE, formerly of Nebraska, and now residing at No. 361 Columbia Street, Elmira, N. Y.

"I was a sufferer from Kidney and Bladder trouble, and was so bad that I had given up all hope. I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Carey's Marsh Root. To my surprise and satisfaction, I at once could see a change in my condition. I continued to use the valuable remedy, and can now say that I am entirely cured. I am seventy-one years old and comparatively a weak man, and cannot say too much for Dr. Carey's Marsh Root Kidney and Bladder Cure. I can now sleep all night and rest well. Before I commenced taking Dr. Carey's Marsh Root, I was compelled to urinate several times during my sleeping hours, thanks to your remedy. Signed, A. B. ROYSE."

Seventeen-Year Locust This Summer

State Zoologist H. A. Surface is receiving at Harrisburg many letters of inquiry concerning the anticipated outbreak of the Seventeen Year Locust in Pennsylvania this summer. Professor Surface has replied to such inquiries as follows:

One Brood known to entomologists as Brood II, of the so-called Seventeen Year Locust, properly called the Periodical Cicada, is due to appear in the Eastern part of Pennsylvania this summer. The counties in which it was recorded seventeen years ago, and in which it can be confidently expected to more or less extent this year, are as follows: Philadelphia, Delaware, Chester, Montgomery, Bucks, Lancaster, Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, Schuylkill, Lehigh, Northampton, Pike, Wyoming and Potter. It will also occur in New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia, but will be rare west of the Susquehanna River in Pennsylvania. It may be expected in some of the intervening Pennsylvania counties, such as Monroe, Carbon, Luzerne, Lackawanna and Wayne, but it is believed that it will not appear anywhere in such tremendous numbers as has been predicted in the newspaper reports of a certain University Professor, which make him say that they will cover the ground to a depth of two feet.

It is, in fact, not to be considered sufficiently serious to cause the postponement of tree planting in regions in which it is to occur, and the recommendations of Professor Surface are that on all land which was covered with trees or bushes sixteen years ago, the young fruit trees be allowed to go without pruning until after the Locusts have laid their eggs which occurs about the middle of June. The trees can then be pruned in such a way as to cut out many twigs that are badly injured, and at the same time not seriously damage the trees, as might be done if they were closely pruned now, and the injurious effects of the Locusts were not thus distributed over a great amount of the tree top.

The same principle applies to all young orchards in the area named. It may be better to let them go unpruned until the end of June. Professor Surface will make a special study of the distribution of this particular Brood of the Periodical Cicada, and desires information of its occurrence in different parts of the state. There are several Broods, which come at irregular intervals, and thus break up the apparent order of seventeen years.

The old idea of the "W" "standing for War" on the wings of the insect is nothing more than superstition, and is to be given no important thought. Persons proposing to plant orchards can proceed with safety if they will act with intelligence.

20,000 DICTIONARIES

Distributed by the Pittsburgh Post in Twenty-five Days.

The most gigantic enterprise ever known in the advertising and book world has taken place in the past five weeks in the presentation of Webster's new illustrated dictionary by the Pittsburgh Post. More than twenty thousand have gone out and not one is unsatisfactory, everybody is pleased, the many colored plates is a new departure in dictionaries.

Prof. J. M. Berkey, one of the best educators of Pittsburgh, who has always been in the fight for school reform, and is at present in charge of the Liberty, Osceola, Shakespeare and Friendship public schools, says of the Post dictionary:

"For the school desk, the home library or the business office, it is the most usable edition, in my judgment, of all the Websters yet published. I like it for its plain, clear type, simplified pronunciation, common sense definitions, historical and literary data, and especially for the complete population statistics of the 1910 census. I have no doubt that it will do just what its compilers claim for it—meet the popular demand for a convenient and reliable dictionary."

I want to thank you and to commend your efforts in bringing this excellent little help to good English before the general public."

Anything the Pittsburgh Post does is right and the Bedford Gazette commends this dictionary to its readers. The expense bonus of 82c barely pays for paper, printing and binding.

Read the details concerning this remarkable book in the morning Post, or better still, write to the Post about it.

The Man Who Was Bribed

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Abe Slinger and his wife being too lazy to work were determined to live on the community of Hopewell. The constable warned Abe that he couldn't do it. Abe said nothing, but Abe's clothing was found by the mill pond. Mrs. Slinger took on awful, and a soft hearted citizen started a purse for her and $60 were raised, and there were others who contributed food and clothing. The widow moved from the stable into a shanty.

Ten days after the powwow Abe Slinger appeared. He had been carried downstream by the current and thrown on an island, where he had remained unconscious for days and without food for other days. It was a pretty story, but the people had to believe it and congratulate the teller on his wonderful escape.

It was about sixty days later when the next event came off. A citizen who owned a farm outside the village hired Abe to dig a well. He had refused jobs not so hard or dangerous, but he took this one right away. He preferred well digging to even the postoffice steps. When he had been digging for two days and after he had thrown out hints about quicksand and cave-ins the alarm was given that the curbing of the well had caved in and that Abe was probably a dead man eighteen feet down.

There is only one thing to do in such a case—dig the poor fellow out. If living, succor him; if dead, contribute a fund to bury him and carry the widow along. There were some who wouldn't have come down but for the fact that Abe had gone to work and made no kick.

His desire to help himself opened all hearts. If that hadn't then there were the widow's tears and lamentations to fall back on. The sum of $100 was raised for her, and it was more clothes and more provisions.

The bottom of the well was struck at last, but there was no Abe. There sure had been a cave-in, but it hadn't caught him. There was a mystery on hand to be solved. If not at the bottom of the well, then where was he? The question was on every lip for four days, and then Abe came back to answer it himself. It was easily explained.

He had had warning of the coming cave-in and had scrambled out. Such was his terror that he had been temporarily out of his head. He remembered running away as fast as he could, but when his senses came back to him he was thirty miles away and hiding in a farmer's barn. As soon as he had recovered his nerve he came jogging along home and was ready to tackle the job again.

Hopewell shook its head in a doubting way, but did not talk much. Abe Slinger was coming to the front and becoming a hero. He had also moved from a shanty into a cottage and was living on the top shelf. As a matter of fact, he did finish the well and thereby made himself solid with all who might have otherwise criticised. Nevertheless the town constable felt that he had a duty to perform. He went to Abe and said:

"You went to your death in the river and returned. You went to your death in the well and returned. Don't try the little game again. If you do I don't believe the town will raise another dollar for your widow."

The summer had departed and late autumn had come. Abe hadn't tired himself out looking for any more jobs, but was now offered the position of night watchman of the village. It was a cold job and poor pay, and no one wanted it until he stepped forward. Not a robbery had ever been committed in the village, but there were taxpayers who thought it best to guard against such things happening. When the constable heard of the appointment he met Abe to say:

"No foolishness, now."

"If robbers come I shall kill some of them," was the reply.

"But if you have them kill you don't make a mess of it."

"I shall do my best to die, and when you see me lying dead you will be sorry for what you have said."

Two weeks passed, and then one night at midnight there were yells and shots and the noise of running, and the people turned out to find Abe Slinger missing. He was searched for, but not found. Next day there was a grand hunt, but no clev. Robbers had killed him and borne his body away—another public subscription for the widow—more provisions, fuel and clothing. She actually opened an account at the village bank and put on mourning. Another two weeks and the cat came back. Abe walked in to say that he had discovered three rogues about to break into the postoffice and when he had fired on them they had seized and chloroformed him and borne him away in a buggy. For twelve days he had known nothing, but now he had come back to take his job again.

Hopewell didn't say much. It didn't threaten. It didn't bring out tar and feathers. It simply asked the question of Abe Slinger:

"How much cash will you take to skate out of this town and stay skated?"

"One hundred dollars," was the prompt reply. And it was raised in an hour, and within an hour Abe and his wife were departing for new fields. They were poor, but honest, but Hopewell preferred the other kind.

London, March 19.—Pastor Russell preached today at the London Tabernacle to an overflowing house. His text was taken from Hebrews ii, 3: "So great salvation, which began to be spoken by our Lord, and was confirmed unto us by those who heard Him." The speaker said:

In the past many of us misunderstood these words—"so great salvation"—and have thought them to apply merely to an "elect" few of the saintly followers of our great Redeemer. Surely it should not be thought strange if a closer examination of God's Word would demonstrate to us that as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are His ways and plans higher than ours (Isaiah lv, 9). It should not surprise us to find that our forefathers were generally in considerable darkness in respect to "the length and breadth and height and depth of the love of God, which passeth all understanding" (Ephesians iii, 18, 19). It should not surprise us to find that our Savior will yet see the fruitage of the travail of His soul and be satisfied (Isaiah liii, 11), and that this satisfaction will result from the salvation of more than the "little flock," who walk in His steps and who, like Him, "present their bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God," in the service of Truth and righteousness.

There are several ways of treating this thought, that more than an "elect" few are eventually to reach eternal life through the Redeemer of mankind. One way, which many adopt, is to claim that our Lord and the Apostles did not really mean to establish so high a standard of sainthood as their words imply, and then to conclude that the unsaintly will gain eternal life as well as the saintly—all except the degenerately wicked. This view of matters, which is the common one, is undoubtedly prompted by sympathy for friends, relatives, neighbors and the heathen; but it is wholly contrary to God's Word.

Another view still held by some is that everybody but the saintly will suffer torture eternally and hopelessly.

The third theory which I desire to present here is the one I believe to be in accord with every text of Scripture, and in accord with Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power Divine, and in accord with sanctified common sense. I have time for only an outline of this Plan, which is most comprehensive, as follows:

The Saintly New Creation

Salvation in no sense began before the Redeemer's birth, forty-one hundred and twenty-eight years after the fall of our first parents. In all that long period nobody was saved. The Apostle declares in our text that salvation began to be preached by Jesus. Again we read that Jesus brought life and immortality to light through His Gospel (II Timothy i, 10). So, then, life and immortality and the Gospel Message began to be preached by our Lord and was not preached before His day. Indeed we can see that if there is "none other Name given under heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved," than the name of Jesus, then it could not have been preached; nothing could be preached previously except the Divine declaration that God purposed in due time to redeem mankind from sin and death through a Savior and a Great One—One able to save unto the uttermost all that would come unto the Father through Him.

This reasoning is surely true to the facts. Search all through the Old Testament and there is found no promise of eternal life set forth except by the Law given to the one lit-the nation of Israel. That Law declared that he that doeth these things shall live by his obedience thereto (Romans x, 5), and the Apostle assures us that Jews died because none of them kept the Law—because no imperfect human being could possibly meet the requirements of God's perfect Law. "By the deeds of the Law shall no flesh be justified in His sight" (Romans iii, 20).

The Apostle, further explaining the matter, says, "wherefore, then, serveth the Law?" He replies to his question, "It was added because of transgression until the promised Seed should come" (Galatians iii, 19).

The Promised Seed

The Apostle's words direct our thoughts back to Eden, when God declared that the Seed of the woman would at some future time bruise the Serpent's head. But that Seed did not exist for over four thousand years after, and has not yet crushed the Serpent's head—destroyed sin and the works of Satan.

The Apostle's words again remind us of God's promise to Abraham, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (Genesis xxviii, 14). Abraham was not thus blessed, nor were any others thus blessed, however faithful they were. All the blessing was to come through Abraham's Seed and could not be dispensed before His coming. Hence the Apostle, referring to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the faithful of past time, declared, "All these died in faith, not having received the promise" (Hebrews xi, 13)—the blessing—reconciliation to God and eternal life.

And when Jesus came He did not attempt to bless the world, but on the contrary, in His prayer, declared, "I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given Me" (John xvii, 9)—the saintly, the "very elect" (Matthew xxiv, 24). These He called; these He taught—"Israelites indeed." These He directed to give the same message to others, not for the conversion of the world, but for the calling, instruction and edification of "the Church, which is the Body of Christ." The message to these from first to last was that they were called to suffer with Him, that they might also reign with Him.

"The Church Which is the Body of Christ."

In the past many of use have overlooked the fact that the Church are, figuratively, "the Body of Christ"—to be hereafter, as the Apostle declares, "the Church which is His Body." And again, We are members in particular of the Body of Christ, which is the Church (I Corinthians xii, 27). In a word, then, the entire Christ includes the members of the Body with the glorious Head of the Body. And this glorious Christ, which will be completed by the close of this Gospel Age, will as a whole be the promised Seed of Abraham.

From this viewpoint we can see why God's long-promised blessing has not yet reached the world, but from this viewpoint we can see that He is merely selecting or electing the Church, the Seed of Abraham. The promise to Abraham is, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed," and, as we have seen, the Seed of Abraham is "Jesus the Head and the Church His Body." In a word, our previous view of the Divine Plan was too narrow. We saw the election of the Church, but did not see God's gracious purposes for "All the families of the earth." The Church, as the Scriptures declare, is merely a "first-fruits" unto God of His creatures and is not, by any means, the entire harvest. Let us here remember St. Paul's explanation of this matter. He declares, "We, brethren, as Isaac was, are the children of the promise" (Galatians iv, 28)—the heirs of the promise—through us all the families of the earth are to be blessed.

No Second Chance in This

It might indeed be said in one sense of the word that since father Adam was placed on trial in Eden with a reward of eternal life before him or a penalty of death, and that since he lost his chance of eternal life by disobedience, therefore any chance of eternal life coming to him or to any member of his race would, of necessity, be a second chance. This is undoubtedly true. From this standpoint every member of the human family must eventually have a second chance for eternal life, because it was for this very purpose that our Redeemer left the heavenly glory, was made flesh, dwelt amongst us and "died, the just for the unjust." Whoever enjoys this second chance must expect no more, because

"Christ dieth no more." But, as we have already seen, nobody had a second chance for eternal life prior to the coming of our Redeemer into the world. "He brought life and immortality to light." He died, the just for the unjust, to make reconciliation for iniquity—and this message of so great salvation began to be spoken by our Lord.

The comparatively few who have heard the Gospel since Jesus' day—Good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people—these, the comparatively few, who have heard of "the only name given under heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved"—are the only ones who in any sense of the word have had their second chance. Indeed we might, Scripturally, limit the matter much further and say that the Gospel has been hidden from the majority of those who heard it; their mental eyes and ears being deaf and blind, they did not comprehend the message, and therefore could not reject it.

The "high calling" and "so great salvation" which so few have really heard and seen is referred to by our great Redeemer saying, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear." "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them; because they are spiritually discerned." * * * But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit" (I Corinthians ii, 14). In other words, only the Spirit-begotten ones are now on trial for life everlasting or death everlasting. And only the faithful footstep followers will gain the glory, honor, immortality and joint-heirship with Him in His Kingdom. These are the "elect," the "very elect." There are such as make their calling and election sure by so running as to obtain this great prize of membership in the Body of Christ.

These elect ones experience a change of nature, and in the future will not be human beings, but partakers of the divine nature (II Peter i, 4). They will be inducted into the perfection of the divine nature in the First Resurrection, the chief resurrection, in which they will be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, because flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God (I Corinthians xv, 50-52).

Human Salvation is Restitution

We all gaged at the thought that the heathen and everybody except saints would be consigned to an eternity of torture, yet we all recognized that heaven is not a place of development but a condition of perfection. We were perplexed, mystified. We did not follow our Bibles with sufficient care. Many of us twisted the Scriptures, wrestled them from their plain, obvious import, and always to our own injury. Some went in the direction of Universalism; others halfway, and still others abandoned the Holy Book. Now we see where we erred.

God has two salvations; one for the Church and a totally different one for the world. The salvation for the Church is to heavenly nature, spirit bodies, and joint-heirship with the Master in His Kingdom, which flesh and blood cannot inherit, as we have already seen. The other salvation, for mankind, is an earthly one, called in the Scriptures "Restitution." Man was not an angel originally, not a spirit being, but, as the Scriptures declare, "The first man was of the earth earthy."

It was that earthly man, perfect, in the image of his Creator, for whose happiness Eden was specially prepared. By obedience to God he might have continued to enjoy his Eden home everlastingly. By disobedience he first lost his fellowship with God, then his Eden home, and after nine hundred and thirty years of toiling with thorns and thistles in sweat of face, the death penalty upon him reached completion—he died. Adam's race, sharing his weaknesses by laws of heredity, have also shared death with him.

"World Through Him Might Be Saved"

The Scriptures tell us that God's real purpose in sending Jesus into the world was that the "world might through Him be saved"—not the salvation of the Church; that was an incidental feature. The Church is selected that as the Bride or Queen during the Messianic Kingdom she may be associated with her Lord, the King, as the Seed of Abraham in the blessing, the saving, of Adam and his family, or so many of them as shall be willing, from sin and death conditions. We remember the Master's words to the effect that "He came to seek and to save (recover) that which was lost."

We have just seen that it was a human life, human perfection and an earthly home that were lost. It is these, then, that Jesus proposes in due time to recover for Adam and his family. The Messianic reign of Jesus and his Body—the Anointed, the Christ, The Messiah—will be for the purpose of blessing Adam and all of his race with glorious opportunities of an earthly salvation. The uplifting, restoring influences of Messiah's Kingdom will affect not only Adam and his race, but also the earth itself. Gradually Paradise Lost, as a little garden of Eden, will become Paradise Regained as the world beautiful. "The wilderness shall blossom as a rose and the solitary place shall be glad."

"Times of Restitution"

At our Lord's First Advent the "acceptable time" began—the time when God, having accepted the sacrifice of Christ Jesus, became willing through Him to accept the sacrifices of all who desire to become His disciples—to take up their cross and follow Him through evil report and good report even unto death. The entire Gospel Age antitypes Israel's Day of Atonement, and the sacrifices of our Lord and the Church, His Body, are the "better sacrifices," foreshadowed by the bullock and the goat offered typically by the Jews. This is the acceptable year of the Lord which Jesus declared (Isaiah li, 2; Luke iv, 19). God's faithful people of this acceptable day are glad to be invited to "present their bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable unto God" (Romans xii, 1). In the end of this acceptable day will come the end of all opportunity to thus sacrifice the human nature and become joint-heirs with Christ and partakers of the heavenly nature.

Then will be introduced a new period styled, in the Scriptures, "Times (or years) of Restitution." The acceptable day for the Church's sacrifice has lasted for nearly nineteen centuries. And we know how long the "Times of Restitution" will last—nearly a thousand years. St. Peter tells us just when these "Restitution Times" will begin. They did not begin in his day. They have not begun yet. They will begin as a result of the Second Advent of Jesus, the Messiah, and the establishment of His Kingdom and righteousness, "Times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord and He shall send Jesus Christ, as before was preached unto you, whom the heavens must retain until the Times of Restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began. For Moses verily said unto the fathers, A Prophet like unto me (of whom I am but a type or figure) shall the Lord your God raise up unto you from amongst your brethren. Him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever He shall speak unto you. And it shall come to pass that the soul that will not obey that Prophet shall be destroyed from amongst the people" (Acts iii, 19-23)—in the Second Death.

This great Prophet has been in process of raising up for now nearly nineteen centuries. And when the last member of His Body shall have passed beyond the veil, He will stand

[Held over from last week.]

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Glacken near New Paris was the scene of a pleasant surprise party on Thursday, March 9, when a number of friends and relatives gathered and presented them with a handsome quilt.

The day was spent in quilting and was heartily enjoyed by all. Graphophone music was given by James Glacken and organ selections were rendered by Lillie Gordon, Ada Custer, James and Della Glacken and Mrs. Samuel Lape, an aged lady of 79 years and mother of Mrs. Glacken.

A bounteous dinner was served at the noon hour. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. James Glacken, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Custer, Mr. and Mrs. William Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller, Mrs. R. R. McCreary, Mrs. Joseph Custer, Mrs. S. S. Dull, Mrs. Samuel Lape, Sr., Mrs. Jacob Wertz, Mrs. Abner Richards, Mrs. David Custer, Mrs. John Rock, Mrs. Walter Custer, Mrs. Jerry Heines, Mrs. Rebecca Felix, Mrs. Lucinda Lape, Misses Ada Custer, Carrie Miller, Nellie McCreary, Lillie Gordon, Bertha Custer, Jessie Manges, Susie Barley, Salome Robinet, Messrs. William Barley, Sr., Edward Shaffer, Clinton Custer, Howard Blackburn, Clyde Felix and Frank McCreary.

Frederic C. Howe, a high authority on City Government, writes in the April Scribner of "The German and the American City," contrasting their methods of Government and showing the remarkable way in which German cities are planning for the future, believing that they are to be the centres of the best civilization.

Letter From Dr. Baldwin

Last week the Presbyterian Church received a letter from the celebrated organist, Dr. Minor C. Baldwin, of New York, containing the following words of appreciation: "I feel I owe you a letter of commendation for the wise choice made in the selection of the fine pipe organ you have in your church. The memory of it still lingers with me."

State Model Orchard Meetings

The Division of Zoology of the State Department of Agriculture, H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, is now holding a series of Public Orchard Meetings in every county in the State, at which free lectures are delivered and practical work performed by the representatives of the Department. Spraying solution will be prepared, and trees pruned and sprayed in the presence of the audience, each step in the process being explained. This is a splendid opportunity for all persons interested in fruit growing to learn up-to-date scientific methods.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

Just the right medicine for backache, rheumatism, Bright's disease and all urinary irregularities. C. Bichler, 2315 6th Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "For several years I was troubled with my kidneys and bladder and I had taken different medicines I received no relief. Foley Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I started using them. The first few doses relieved me and after using only a few bottles I am entirely cured of all kidney and bladder trouble. The action of my kidneys was irregular and painful and I was troubled with backaches and dizzy spells. Foley Kidney Pills were the means of restoring me to good health and I do not hesitate to recommend them." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Are You My Wife?

If charming women, dramatic situations or baffling mystery count for anything, then "Are You My Wife?" will surely grasp and hold you to the last, for it contains an abundance of each. From the first it urges the reader onward. "Are You My Wife?" is the most popular book of the season and will be published serially in the daily edition of The Pittsburgh Dispatch, beginning Thursday, March 23. Be sure to get the first installment.

 THE HOUSE THAT SAVES YOU MONEY

SAN JOSE SCALE

Begin Spraying at once—don't lose a day. Your Fruit Trees, Vines and Shrubs of all kinds should be sprayed with Bowker's Lime-Sulphur every spring when the buds are swelling, but before they show green at the tips. Applications made later than this time may cause serious injury by burning the foliage. Therefore, order early and be prepared for the season.

Lime-Sulphur is not a poison, and kills only by coming directly in contact with the insect. It does not kill leaf-eating insects. Spray for these with Bowker's Pyrox. Lime-Sulphur has fungicidal properties, and is a specific in this respect for use on peaches, plums—in fact all stone fruits.

Spraying with Lime-Sulphur is cheap insurance against the scale, and is better than most insurance, because in every case when you spray, you reap a benefit, whether you have San Jose Scale present or not; that is, this spray kills other forms of scales and bark lice which are sure to be present, the leafblister mite, the eggs of many insects, and the fungus spores which are lodged on the bark, checks the growth of mosses and lichens, cleans up the trunk and large branches, and goes a long way toward getting the tree in good condition at the opening of the growing season. Give your trees a good start.

In Bowker's Lime-Sulphur we have the most concentrated, most reliable and the safest Lime-Sulphur for spraying fruit trees, shade trees, grape vines, currant bushes, shrubbery, etc. Its analysis and purity are guaranteed under the new United States Insecticide Law. It is a cherry-red liquid, clear and free from sediment and is made under the direct personal supervision of skilled graduate chemists.

Farm boiled Lime-Sulphur is always disagreeable and troublesome to make, variable in quality and not as easily applied as in the uniform product of a factory, where modern machinery, fitted with electrically driven agitators and every convenience for making a uniform, high-grade product on a large scale.

DIRECTIONS: Spring Spraying: Bowker's Lime-Sulphur needs only to be mixed with COLD water in the proportion of 1 gallon to 9 gallons of water (making 10 gallons of spray) and it is ready to use:

Price per gallon of Lime-Sulphur
 30c; per bbl. $10.00

If you have only a few trees in your lot, you can't afford to let them be killed by San Jose Scale, when the means at hand are so simple, and the cost so little that with a little effort you can easily save them.

We are also agents for Pratt's "Scalecide"—a Soluble Oil used to destroy San Jose Scale—and as effective as Lime-Sulphur Solution, and much easier to apply.

The cost of "Scalecide" is 60c a gallon, but 1 gallon of it makes 15 gallons of mixture with cold water. The cost of a gallon of "Scalecide" mixture is but a trifle more than the cost of a gallon of the Lime-Sulphur mixture.

Spraying should be done at once. We are agents for the above Spraying Solutions, in this part of the State, and have a good stock on hand.
